

(Mobile book) Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean

Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean

Arto Der Haroutunian
*ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

#2123739 in Books 1989-03Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 #File Name: 0070266654128 pages | File size: 44.Mb

Arto Der Haroutunian : Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. YummyBy Kate08Great European recipes. Pretty little cook book.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Patisserie of the Eastern MediterraneanBy Ercument AkmanThis was a book i wanted to buy for some time. I am happy to have it now in good condition.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. So That's How They Make ThatBy BluntReviewMiddle Eastern food is fantastic. But how do you make these things.? It's not hard! This book taught me how to literally whip up a few favoraites and the secret to others.I found a few treats i did not even know were to be had. And, after organizing a few easily found ingredients, I dazzle dinner guest regularly.

It was in Egypt, over four thousand years ago, that yeast was first developed. In the wall paintings of tomb of Rameses III at Thebes cooks are seen kneading the dough with their hands, forming it into rolls and then sprinkling the tops with seeds, very much as is done today. From these humble beginnings, by way of the conquering Arabs and Turks who cross-fertilized the food and eating habits of their subject races, the cuisine of the middle East was born. Most of the recipes in Patisserie of the Eastern Mediterranean will be unfamiliar to Western palates; tantalizingly fragrant and sweet, they reflect the diverse origins and traditions of the Middle Eastern peoples. Created for the caliphs of Baghdad, the sultans and the shahs, all in time have become the property of the desert nomads and peasant farmers. To northern races the ingredients may sound exotic - pine nuts and pistachios, orange blossom and rosewater, cinnamon, mastic and aniseed, pomegranates and quinces - but these are the natural resources of the Middle Eastern lands. The book includes recipes for baklavas and kunafehs made with filo pastry, doughnuts and fritters, filled pastries, cakes, cookies and sweet breads from Greece, Israel, Turkey, North Africa, Iran, Syria, the Lebanon and Afghanistan. With its sumptuous color photographs and enchanting recipes Panorama of the Eastern Mediterranean is a fascinating glimpse into an otherwise unexplored aspect of Middle Eastern cuisine.