Lesley Harding, Kendrah Morgan : Sunday's Kitchen: Food Living at Heide before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Sunday's Kitchen: Food Living at Heide:

Spotlighting a passionate cook and gardener, this biographical account explores the home of Sunday Reed and her husband John, emphasizing the importance of home-grown produce, seasonal cooking, and a communal table. Showcasing the Reeds as two of Australia's most significant art benefactors, this study investigates this couple's 15 acre property, which they settled on in 1935 and eventually transformed from a run-down dairy farm into a fertile creative space for artists such as Sidney Nolan, Albert Tucker, Joy Hester, and Charles Blackman. Richly illustrated with art, several previously unpublished photographs, and exquisite recipes from Sunday's personal collection, this is a behind-the-scenes look at a compelling and complex locale.
