Dr. Supathorn Phongikaroon : Thaidaho before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Thaidaho:

This cookbook was written after several requests from my good friends in Idaho for my Thai recipes. There are over 20 recipes for those that want to cook Thai foods with limited available Thai ingredients based on my chemical engineering background and over 15 years involving in Thai family restaurant business. After several years of writing and testing my recipes with all my friends, teaching several Thai cooking classes at Alex's Kitchen Supplies, and receiving good comments from people with my own original distribution in 2012, I am happy to share THAIDAHO with people worldwide. My wife and I currently live in Richmond, Virginia after my 10 years in Idaho Falls, Idaho (with my wife for 2 years there). But these recipes still stand and will continue the legacy within my heart.

About the Author Supathorn Phongikaroon received his PHD in Chemical Engineering from University of Maryland, College Park (UMCP) and BS in Nuclear Engineering from UMCP as well. He started cooking when he was eight years old and helping his family restaurant business for more than 15 years. Since then, he moved and stayed in Idaho Falls, Idaho working at Idaho National Laboratory and later at University of Idaho. That was where THAIDAHO was originally written and first distributed among his friends in 2012. Currently, he and his beautiful wife live in Richmond, Virginia where he works as an Associate Professor in Department of Mechanical and Nuclear Engineering at Virginia Commonwealth University.
